CENSUS OF INDIA 1971

SERIES 18

RAJASTHAN

PART IX-A

ADMINISTRATIVE ATLAS

A supplement to this volume, issued separately, provides a list of villages and towns in Rajasthan classified by various ranges of population sizes, and some other relevant data.

FOREWORD

THE CENSUS ORGANISATION is the largest single producer of maps relating to Rajasthan. It had published an Atlas after the 1961 Census, which being a pioneering work of its kind, had received much acclaim and drew appreciative comments from all quarters. In the same tradition, the Census Organisation has now again brought out an Administrative Atlas of Rajasthan which is an improvement both in content and presentation over the earlier edition.

The cartographic portraits contained in this Atlas are both numerous and of great range and variety. They serve to strengthen the understanding of geography and demography at official and other levels. What is more, they appear to be unsurpassed in their excellence of authentic regional detail.

Projects like this cannot be completed without the sense of purpose and dedication in all those associated with such works. One can imagine the strenuous planning, work and supervision which must have gone into the production of this Atlas and I congratulate the team of workers which made this project a success.

I hope this Atlas will be a welcome reference aid to the administrator, the planner, the educationist, the researcher and to those in business.

PREFACE

THE CARTOGRAPHIC PORTRAITS presented in this volume show the administrative structure of the State of Rajasthan at the time of 1971 Census and portray the distribution of population, its density, major amenities available at district, tehsil, town and village levels, and the functional areas of towns besides reflecting on the broad physical characteristics of these units. The only precursor of this Atlas was published after the 1961 Census which was well received by the readers and the present volume is an improvement both in content and presentation over the same. A supplement providing a list of villages and towns classified by various ranges of population, besides some other relevant data, is being separately released with this Atlas which will further enhance the usefulness of this work.

This Atlas will be found valuable by all administrators and technocrats specially those engaged in planning, and, by all those who are engaged in business, trade and commerce. This work is, however, specially intended for the scholar who is engaged in the field of research and desires to have a ready frame for his project.

A lot of labour has gone into the building up of this Atlas. A team of highly conscientious workers has made it possible for us to present this work to our readers. While names of all those who were associated with this work at different stages of its production are given overleaf, we mention here the various group leaders. Shri S. P. Kashyap and Wali Hyder, under the supervision of Assistant Director Shri M. Thangaraju, tirelessly worked to cull out the data on which the maps were prepared; Dr. R. K. Tyagi meticulously supervised the work of map making while Shri M. L. Kumawat brought his rich experience to bear upon the map drawing work; Assistant Director Shri S. R. Luhadia, efficiently managed the over all production as well as the reproduction of the manuscript in its present form while Shri M. M. Goyal looked devotedly to the actual block making and printing work. We cannot express in words our gratitude to Shri Vijay Verma, the Director of Census Operations for 1971, who during his tenure took such deep interest in the development of this work that it can well be said that but for his enthusiasm this work would not have been completed in record time. We are grateful to the Government of Rajasthan for kindly agreeing to publish this Atlas. Special thanks are also due to Shri P. C. Patni of Messrs Jubilee Block and Printing Works for the fine reproduction of maps.

An Administrative and a Physical map of Rajasthan has been provided respectively at the outset and at the flag end of this book.
NOTE

In the preparation of the maps contained in this Atlas we have extensively consulted the maps issued by the Survey of India, State Settlement Department, the Public Works Department, the Town Planning Department and the Indian Railways.

An Administrative map of Rajasthan in colour showing district and tehsil boundaries, headquarter towns, major roads, rivers and railways, and containing insets showing the location of Rajasthan in India, density of population and territorial changes during 1961-71 has been provided at the outset. Another colour map of Rajasthan provided at the fag end portrays the physical features of the State and its inset maps show the geographic regions, rainfall and temperature, soils and the pattern of land utilisation in the State.

There are coloured maps of all the 26 districts. They show tehsil and sub-divisional boundaries, roads and railways and physical features like hills and rivers. Location of the towns are shown by means of spheres according to population sizes but as exact municipal boundaries are not known in most cases, the town areas are shown as including the outgrowth and part-villages, wherever they occur, and their approximate location is indicated by sub-numbers. Certain villages are also shown and their location marked by means of dots according to population sizes. Major amenities available at various places are also indicated. An inset indicates the various tehsils within the district as also the territorial changes, if any, during the period 1961-71.

There are maps for all the 196 tehsils of the State. They show revenue boundaries of each of their individual towns and villages, their names, code numbers, population sizes by means of dots, rivers and means of communications among other things. In some cases, however, it has not been possible to accommodate the full names of the villages and the reader is advised to consult the Supplement to this Atlas, issued separately, where a classified list of all villages, presented tehsilwise, is made available. An inset shows the pattern of population density in the tehsil. Each tehsil map is followed by a set of four amenity maps showing the villages served by Transport, Postal, Medical and Educational facilities. They help give us an idea about the overall spatial distribution of basic amenities. Villages having basic amenities like a road or a railway station, a post office, a dispensary or a primary school have been shaded. Villages having amenities higher than these basic have been shown by appropriate symbols and their location code indicated.

Maps for the 157 towns in the State form an important part of this Atlas. Coloured maps have been presented for the seven cities with population of over a lakh persons. In many cases, however, to-the-scale town maps are not available and notional maps have been drawn for this presentation. Maps show the ward boundaries, functional areas and important sites. An inset indicates the pattern of population density in cases where maps are available on scale. They also indicate such other neighbouring towns and outgrowths as form an urban agglomeration, wherever such an agglomeration exists. The boundaries of outgrowths are, however, approximate.
The maps presented in this book have been numbered in the following manner:

District Map: District Code Number followed by 1.

Tehsil Maps: District Code Number followed by 2, 3, 4 etc. in the order of the tehsil code sequence with 'A' being added for each set of Amenity maps.

Town Maps: District Code Number followed by the number next to that assigned to the last tehsil map with the district headquarter city/town coming first and other towns getting subsequent numbers according to the code sequence.

Although each of the district and tehsil maps presented in this book has been provided with an abridged index the following detailed index may be consulted when using this Atlas:

PROPORTION OF WORKERS AND NON-WORKERS TO THE TOTAL EMPLOYABLE POPULATION OF AGE-GROUP 15-59, 1961

In the total employable population of age-group 15-59 in Rajasthan there are 64.42 per cent of male and 35.39 per cent of female workers. The rest is the non-working population, consisting of 0.17 males and 0.02 females. Thirteen districts in the case of male workers and the same number of districts in the case of female workers have larger proportions than the State average. While in the case of male workers the proportions range from 64.53 per cent in Ajmer district to 78.76 per cent in Ganganagar district, they range from 35.58 per cent in Barmer district to 44.00 per cent in district Dungarpur in case of female workers. In rest of the districts there are lower proportions of male and female workers. The proportions of non-working males and females to the total employable population of age-group 15-59 in the various districts are almost the same as for the State as a whole.

The Map alongside presents the sex wise proportion of workers and non-workers to the total employable population of the age-group 15-59 which is expressed as the number of persons of that age-group excluding those in household duties, full time students, disabled persons, rentiers or persons of independent means, beggars and inmates of penal, mental and charitable institutions.

The following table gives the proportion of workers and non-workers by sex to total employable population of the age-group 15-59:
